CHSI Executive Lauded as “Person of the Year”

Las Vegas, NV, November 28, 2007 – Ted Hall, President of CHSI Captive Insurance Managers, is the distinguished recipient of the 2007 “ Alice A. Molasky-Arman Person of the Year” award from the Nevada Captive Insurance Association (NCIA). The award, created by the NCIA for distinguished service to the industry in Nevada, was presented by Insurance Commissioner Molasky-Arman at the third-annual NCIA conference held November 16 at Caesar’s Palace, Las Vegas.

Mr. Hall has played a key role in the Nevada Captive Insurance Association, the organization that supports the growth of captive industry in the state. Under Commissioner Molasky-Arman’s leadership, Nevada has become one of the nation’s fastest growing homes for captive insurance companies. Captives are alternative risk financing operations that are organized to control insurance costs that hurt businesses and professionals and drive up consumer costs. Mr. Hall is a nationally recognized author and lecturer on captive insurance and is the co-author of the industry textbook Captive Insurance Manual and a contributor to Practical Risk Management.

As an expert in specialized areas of alternative risk management and insurance company operations, Mr. Hall heads CHSI Captive Insurance Managers, LLC. As a former tax partner with the accounting firm of Ernst & Young, Mr. Hall was a member of the firm’s insurance industry specialization group. Since 1991, he has provided board member, senior executive, independent captive management, professional, and litigation support services to insurance and captive insurance companies.

About CHSI Captive Insurance Managers

CHSI Captive Insurance Managers helps companies manage risk and control liability costs. Leveraging a cutting-edge technology infrastructure and experienced professionals, they design and manage captive programs that take the worry out of commercial liability risk and put money back in the policyholders’ pockets. CHSI Captive Insurance Managers provide opportunities for companies in common industries or professions to come together and share-risk. They can also assist with pure captives for single member programs.

About CHSI

CHSI helps drive profits to the bottom line of its clients. Workers’ compensation costs have to be controlled in a successful business. CHSI develops programs and services that drive insurance costs down for employers so they can reinvest in their business. Founded in 1996, CHSI has assembled a team of industry experts to bring cost control solutions and leading-edge technology in workers’ compensation and related fields, to give small and medium-sized employers a competitive edge usually only available to larger companies.
